Indian Agriculture Summit To Be Held

University of Nevada Cooperative Extension presents the Nevada Indian Summit April 17-19. The purpose of the summit, offered in partnership with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is to help tribal communities in Nevada with future land- and water-use planning, economic development and marketing; and making a profit.

Summit speakers will be experts from many Western entities, including University of Nevada Cooperative Extension, Nevada Division of Water Resources, Yerington Paiute Tribe, University of Arkansas, the Intertribal Agricultural Council and Utah State University.

Highlights of the summit include a presentation on April 18 by Doug Boyle, Nevada climatologist with the University of Nevada, Reno, on how the drought impacts reservations, and a series of presentations on April 19 on tribal food programs, services and the Farm Bill.

Boyle's presentation will cover what Nevada's climate looks like now, what the current map shows, what disaster areas have been declared, and how this information impacts the reservations.

The food presentations include:

- Food Distribution Program ran by the Yerington Paiute Tribe, presented by Laurie Thom, chairman of the Yerington Paiute Tribe;
- Women Infant and Children Programs offered by Intertribal Council of Nevada, presented by Brittany Tybo and Sarah Mecalf from the Intertribal Council of Nevada Women Infant and Children Program; and
- Funding for Nutrition in New Farm Bill, presented by Janie Hipp and Kolby Duren from Indigenous Food and Agricultural Initiative at the University of Arkansas.

Ivory Lyles, director of University of Nevada Cooperative Extension and associate dean for engagement with the University's College of Agriculture, Biotechnology and Natural Resources, will welcome guests the morning of the April 18 sessions. Registration and pricing information are available at <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/2018-nevada-indian-summit-tickets-44566067307>.

Up To $11.5 Million Available for Energy Infrastructure Deployment on Tribal Lands: Apply by April 19

One week remains to apply for the latest funding opportunity announcement (FOA) from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) Office of Indian Energy Policy and Programs. Up to $11.5 million in new funding is available to support Native American and Alaska Native communities interested in harnessing their vast undeveloped energy resources to deploy energy infrastructure on tribal lands.

This FOA builds on efforts to strengthen tribal energy, economic infrastructure resource development, and electrification on tribal lands. This is also the first time that the Office of Indian Energy is issuing a FOA on an entirely fuel- and technology-neutral basis. This will expand the potential for tribes to use the particular resources available to them and is consistent not only with an all-of-the-above energy policy, but also with the principles of tribal sovereignty and self-determination.

This funding opportunity will solicit and select applications from Indian tribes, which include Alaska Native regional corporations and village corporations, and tribal energy resource development organizations in the following areas:

- Topic Area 1: Install energy efficiency measures and/or energy generating systems for tribal buildings that may include deep energy retrofits, energy generating systems, or a combination of energy efficiency measures and energy generating systems.
- Topic Area 2: Deploy community-scale energy generating systems on tribal lands to provide electricity to a substantial number of buildings or even an entire tribal community.
- Topic Area 3: Install energy systems for autonomous operation to power single or multiple essential tribal loads during emergency situations, or to power a substantial number of essential tribal loads for community resilience.

Selected projects will take on a 50% cost share in order to reduce or stabilize energy costs, as well as increase energy security and resilience for Indian tribes and Alaska Native villages.

Applications are due April 19, 2018.

For additional details, read the press release and download the full FOA.

FOA Informational Webinar Available Online

The Office of Indian Energy hosted an informational webinar on FOA eligibility, application, and cost-share requirements; the selection process; and more on February 27. View the webinar slides and video .

USDA Rural Energy for America Program Renewable Energy Systems and Energy Efficiency Improvement Grants: Apply by April 30

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is accepting applications to provide guaranteed loan financing and grant funding to agricultural producers and rural small businesses for renewable energy systems or to make energy efficiency improvements.

These loan guarantees and grants are part of USDA's Rural Energy for America Program (REAP). REAP helps agricultural producers and rural small businesses reduce energy costs and consumption by purchasing and installing renewable energy systems and making energy efficiency improvements in their operations. Eligible systems may derive energy from wind, solar, hydro-electric, ocean, hydrogen, geothermal or renewable biomass (including anaerobic digesters).

The deadline to apply for grants is April 30, 2018. Applications for loan guarantees are accepted year round. Learn more about the program and how to apply. Note: Indian tribes are not directly applicable; however, Indian tribes with agricultural operations and/or small businesses may be eligible. Please see the eligibility requirements and/or contact USDA directly with questions.

More Funding Opportunities: View the Office of Indian Energy funding opportunities page for information on additional opportunities for which tribes may be eligible to apply.

Answer: Chihuahua

Here's just a short excerpt:

"Sustainability sits at the top of the priorities of many cities across the world, especially since the adoption of the Sustainable Development Goals \(SDG\) and the Paris Climate Agreement by the United Nations in 2015. It is important that the impact of different sustainability measures and solutions, including green roofs, become measurable. More research and data should be collected, at the urban and metropolitan scale, to quantify the contribution of green roofs to achieving city sustainability goals. Measuring green roofs impact on stormwater management, air, and water quality would especially allow cities to strategically allocate resources for the installation of green roofs and make them part of city sustainability agendas.

Does your city have green roofs? How do green roofs contribute to a city's livability? And what impact do they have on a city's overall sustainability?

Join us at #TheGlobalGrid Twitter chat to answer these questions and more, with our co-host, Greenroofs.com.
